

Zambia's

FP2030 Commitment

ZAMBIA'S FAMILY PLANNING VISION FOR 2030:

A society where all people are empowered to make informed choices on their Sexual Reproductive Health and Rights (SRHR) and have equitable access to affordable, high-quality family planning commodities and integrated services

1. Generate new data, improving the quality of and better use of existing data for Family Planning Programming and decision making

To improve quality of data to better inform decision making and policy in accuracy, timeliness, precision, reliability, relevance, and disaggregation by age, the government will focus on a variety of strategies. These strategies include capacity strengthening for personnel in health facilities involved in data collection, management and processing, and harmonization of data collection tools. Furthermore, the government will develop evidence-based information from data that is collected for decision making and policy development, and utilize data to inform progress. Periodic review of data collection tools will help to ensure that they conform to emerging issues in family planning (FP).

3. Provide an enabling environment for rights based, Family Planning / Sexual and Reproductive Health (FP/SRH) service delivery for all adolescents and young people

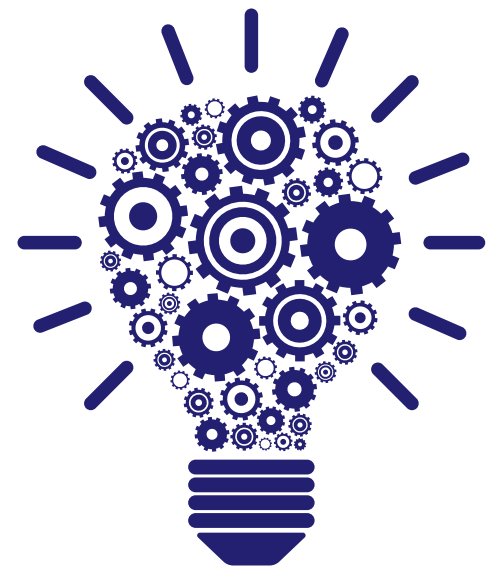

Government of the Republic of Zambia commits to provide an enabling environment for rights based, Family Planning / Sexual and Reproductive Health (FP/SRH) service delivery for all adolescents and young people by implementing capacity building for HCPs, parents and gate keepers on Adolescents Friendly rights based sexual and reproductive health service provision, promoting innovative approaches for access to FP/SRH services, and ensuring that guidelines and training materials for service provision for adolescent health are rights based. They will ensure availability and accessibility of FP commodities and implement SBCC and awareness programmes and performance management systems. They will review policies related to adolescents' access to sexual and reproductive health services, including contraceptives.

2. Transform Social and Gender norms articulating the success statement by 2030 as "A woman or adolescent girl's decision to use modern contraception is supported and accepted"

The government will engage key stakeholders including religious and faith leaders, policy makers, husbands/partners of women, parents of adolescents and youth, and young people through community dialogue meetings to address religious and cultural barriers affecting access and use of Family Planning services, develop accurate, comprehensive and age appropriate messages tailored for each of the groups outlined above, and disseminate these through an integrated SBCC strategy. They will also provide adequate funding implementation of the Comprehensive Communication Strategy at all levels of FP service delivery to increase the demand for modern methods for all women and adolescent girls.
